

2023 HR Professionals

Bobbi Billman

Central York School District

HR professionals were unsung heroes during the pandemic. For HR professionals in public education this was even more true. In addition to coordinating and managing pandemic protocols for a staff of nearly 700 Bobbi also was responsible for contact tracing in all 8 of Central's school buildings for faculty, staff...AND students! It would be impossible to describe the level of coordination this required considering family exposures that required quarantines for students and staff that were potentially spread throughout the district. All of this while keeping up to date with public health guidelines for schools and employers. We will never be able to fully appreciate the effort and gracefulness with which Bobbi fulfilled this role.

Crystal Huesman

The Manufacturers' Association

Since coming to the Association in 2016, Crystal has seen the Associations' training expand from 1,000 students trained a year to over 3,000 students per year and the apprenticeship grow from 36 students to over 120 in 2023. She works tirelessly to keep up with over 400 member companies, their questions, their needs, and their training. She prepares all the materials for every class the Association runs, keeps everything "straight". I have no idea how she does it all and most importantly, she baby sits Brian Paterniti and Tom Palisin keeping them in line which is more than likely her hardest responsibility. Crystal is one of the hardest working, most dedicated people I've ever worked with. She likes pretending that she's the company clown with her Jack bottle in her office, her sweatsuit always ready, but we all know she's the rock we turn to whenever we need help. I'm proud to work with her every day and I'm truly grateful for everything she does for all of us.

Danielle Nelson

First Capital Federal Credit Union

Danielle is new in her role at First Capital FCU and I have heard firsthand from staff that she is "much needed and a perfect fit to help fix the culture". Not only taking on a new role, she has been actively volunteering for to be a part of the York SHRM Event committee.

Dawn Myers

York Saw and Knife

Dawn was the first HR professional to take me under her wing when I was new in the profession. She mentored me, taught me benefits, and was always available to answer questions. She is still someone I look to for guidance and am thankful for her involvement in York SHRM

Jennifer Dettinger

Ream Roofing Associates, LLC

Jenn is relied on heavily in our growing firm and wears numerous hats on a daily basis. She does this with both employee and employer best interest and well-being in mind, she does so fairly, consistently, and with a smile on her face. She has helped transform our culture, and put all personnel at ease with her professionalism, knowledge, and tact in not only HR, but all aspects and duties that she performs for us at Ream Roofing Associates. She is valued, counted on, and trusted in our firm.

Joan Beaverson

Family First Health

Joan has led an extremely motivated team through many curves and changes over the past year plus. Being in the healthcare world, these folks were challenged with continued mask mandates and vaccinations. While enduring this and seeing significant employee turnover, Joan and her team also found time to create new employee programs and changed their payroll and HRIS provider this year. Joan will be retiring at the end of June 2023, and I believe she needs to be recognized for all of her accomplishments not only over the past year, but also the span of her 30+ year career in human resources.

MaryRose Ritter

The Conrad Company (Formerly PennAir)

MaryRose has been a beacon in our HR Community for a number of years and has always offered support to those seeking help within our community. Two years ago she began working for Pennair as their HR Manager. There, she thrives in overseeing the entire HR department and challenges herself to bring change and opportunities to the employees who work there and encourages everyone to have fun!

Victoria Krotzer

Maximum Business Consulting

If you know Vicki, you know she's deserving of this recognition for all she does for her community, her HR colleagues, her friends, and her family. Vicki is behind the scenes running a business, guiding York SHRM, running The York County Cooperative Job Fair (Shameless plug, sign up, it's next week if you haven't already!), sitting on the YCEA Re-Entry Coalition, recruiting and training for The Manufacturers' Association, and countless other HR and community activities. Since 2021, Vicki has attracted over 800 candidates, interviewed over 300 of them and hired about 100 skilled positions for local manufacturing employers. If you didn't know, finding skilled manufacturing candidates is harder than finding a pot of gold at the end of a rainbow... Vicki is York County HR and is extremely deserving of this recognition. Thanks for all you do for everyone you work with, Vicki!
